Foreword

Our purpose has not been just to capture the fleeting moments, days, or weeks at Patrick Henry, but also to determine and illustrate the real and lasting values that developed within us here.

High school is more than an educational process, an athletic team, a social club, or an individual. It is the stress of exams, the elation of an "A", the excitement of a game, the sobriety of a conference, the orderliness of a classroom, the chaos of a pep rally. It is none of these, yet it is all of these. It is the sum of experiences, impressions, and emotions.

TWO OUTSTANDING EDUCATORS

To George Pierce Compton, who has dedicated thirty-eight years of fruitful service to the youth of Hanover County, we humbly dedicate this small volume. May it serve as a reminder of the strength and dignity of the man, the poise and perception of the scholar, and the warmth and sincerity of a valued friend.

SHARE TOP VOICE HONOR

With a great sense of indebtedness, "THE VOICE" dedicates its fourth volume to Walter Nelson Taylor, principal of Patrick Henry High School since its inception in 1959. For four years he has brought Patrick Henry to the plane of honor it now holds.

We are not simply grateful to Mr. Taylor; we are indebted to him. His departure leaves a void. His integrity leaves a permanent mark on the school's future.

MR. TAYLOR

This tall man with dignity, keen sense of humor, and endless patience has powered both faculty and students to goals thought impossible.

MR. DURHAM

His polite reserve is an endearing as well as reassuring quality.

MRS. QUARLES

One of the busiest places in school is the guidance office of Mrs. Doris Quarles. Her task of counseling involves preparation of student schedules, a complete testing program, and a compassion for us that is unequaled at Patrick Henry.

MRS. CONYERS

Mrs. Conyers has the impossible job of receptionist and secretary at Patrick Henry. Her competence is often disguised behind a flurry of energy and a devastating smile that seem to make our most involved problems solve themselves.

CLASS OF 1963

We had been the class of 1963 for four years but somehow we had never felt quite as much a team before. New levels of responsibility, new friends, and many new experiences were to be ours as seniors. From the very first day when Mr. Taylor informed us that we were "seniors now" through the long-lasting parties after graduation we never forgot.

Fall and football always seemed a wonderful pair (. . . and a winning season helped make it so more than ever). Classes were a little harder, sometimes a little more interesting, but few of the teacher-told jokes seemed any fresher or funnier than they were when we first heard them as eighth graders.

Senior sophistication was frequently shattered by Ed Corker's remarks and "Brauther" became a by-word to all of us. If McClurkin was having no trouble with his Hudson, then he was with his women. Something was always wrong somewhere. On the other hand was Annabelle Corbin who showered glory upon herself (and the class) almost daily. A list of her awards and honors would take at least a page of this book to print.

The second semester came on like "gang busters" and we were half way through before we realized we had started. College Board scores were coming in and college applications were going out. Crossed fingers greatly increased on campus! At the same time some were trying to land a seat in college, others of us were trying to land a job, and in some instances, a husband. Plans, plans, and more plans!

Remembering the great amount of work the prom required made us extremely happy not to be involved. We had done ours last year and now could sit back and enjoy someone else's work. A few whispered threats to the juniors produced results and they managed creditably -- although not as well as last year.

We may seem a bit redundant but, mind you, we accomplished all of this with major and minor disturbances. Between Nelson Flippo's camera sticking its "unforgiving eye" into everything to exhaust notes from Winfred Hall's Ford were a thousand distractions that would have dampened less able spirits.

Sweden sent us a golden-haired diplomat named Kia Nylander. Patrick Henry's first exchange student represented her country well and helped make us appreciate her country and its people. Our already bright year was made even brighter by Kia's golden hair and warm personality.

Our class was one of the few groups in the entire country to find good reason for thanking Fidel Castro. When Mr. Castro turned communist many people were forced to leave Cuba. That's how Chela Acosta happened to come to us. Cuba's loss was our gain -- and quite a gain it was.

Perhaps we failed to be the greatest in everything but our record as a class left a standard we are proud of. If what we did inspires next year's class to beat our record, well, that's one more feather in our cap!

CLASS OF 1964

Our class rings, traditional symbol of so many things at Patrick Henry, gave us a sense of belonging to a team. We were the class of 1964 and had visual proof for the first time. Juniors -- the word carried more responsibility than we had imagined it would. It meant many different things to each of us but to us, as a group, it meant we had to mature and prove ourselves capable academically and emotionally of moving to the top of the scholastic ladder.

Our record, now history, firmly established our right to be called Seniors in the Fall. Individual efforts of class members brought winning seasons in sports and made possible club and social activities that would have never been without leadership and support from our class. Through these activities we learned much about getting along with each other -- an important lesson for later years.

Spring generated its usual "fever" but we could scarcely allow ourselves to succomb. There was so much to do for the prom (and we became so excited doing it) that when it came, was a success and was over, we had difficulty believing it had happened.

The junior year might be called anti-climatic, but to us as a class, it would be difficult to imagine a more exciting year ending.

CLASS OF 1965

Somehow the sophomore year seemed to be the middle of the road. We now had two below us and two above, and thus the challenge was to identify with the top. It was with an unconscious awareness that we felt, rather than knew, that the eyes were really on us.

Clubs and classes knew our presence and we amazed ourselves with what we could accomplish. Our members helped take two sports, football and basketball, into high end-of-the season sports, and our Shamrock Ball was a social event to be remembered.

Spring brought spring "fever" but this was not enough to quell the excitement of ordering class rings. One more mark in our progress along Patrick Henry's walkways.

CLASS OF 1966

Matured and already veterans of a full year of high school, 1962-63 was full of promise for us. Looking around on that first day of school we viewed the new eighth grade and wondered, "Did we look that small? Did we seem that lost?"

Our muscles made themselves felt as we participated actively in junior varsity athletics, our eyes firmly fixed on the varsity first-string in a few short years. This was our year to prove ourselves.

Second place in stunt night did little to dull our enthusiasm and it was with pride that we watched each other emerge from within our own ranks as leaders and personalities.

The year of the big change -- that's what this year was for us, and what a change it was! Changing classes, new subjects, and a lost feeling that was bound to come after having been the "tops" the year before.

So many changes and challenges might have done-in lesser people, but not us. We accepted the challenge, elected a fine slate of officers to speak for us, started an eighth grade basketball team, had a swinging dance and so many more things that seem less spectacular but were just as important in our growth as people and as a class.

Most important of all, we started on the right foot and announced that we were here to make our mark.

The Citizenship Club, sponsored by Mrs. Cabell Luck and Miss Audrey Nuckolls, strives to instill citizenship and participation in the students at Patrick Henry. By doing so the club further enriches the community and people and helps create brotherhood and purpose. Through debates and numerous speakers this year, the club has shown its many fine principles.

Trooper Moore speaks on "Citizenship on the Highway" during the Citizenship Club Assembly.

MUSIC APPRECIATION CLUB

Music sharps, flats, bars, stanzas, and notes are not the interests of this club, but the beauty and inspiration which it bestows upon its listeners are. These are the things of music which Mr. Scruggs gives to the club's members, in whatever type of music they like. The accomplishments of the Music Appreciation Club are of the intangible order, -- the satisfaction and peace of mind received by the members.

SCIENCE RESEARCH CLUB MEMBERS WIN NUMEROUS HONORS

Through the aid of Mrs. Tenney and extremely interested club members, the Science Research Club has become very active in talent searches and contests. Jimmy Miller, Robert Weems, and Robert Graham won high honors in the Virginia Junior Academy of Science and The Westinghouse Talent Search.

All the members must have an interest in science and a high average in school work. Both of these are necessary for the projects the members undertake for submittance to contests and talent searches. Besides their individual projects the members were visitors at the University of Richmond's Open House and Biology Lectures and Seminars.

These activities are designed to promote individual research and bring about an increased interest in science about the school. Both activities have been proven successful as evidenced by the honors accorded the members on a national and statewide basis.

Another activity presents individuals preparing for the Science Fair, giving of their time to further their education. Yes, these are some of the activities of this club, done to increase their curiosity in the world around them, and to boost their self-confidence and intellect.

Something has finally interested Billy! Can it be a fish.

This year the Bios Club, which previously has been an honor club only for students averaging an "A" in biology, opened its membership to those excelling in chemistry and physics. This change proved rewarding.

New members bred new enthusiasm; thus the club undertook numerous projects. The most outstanding was the county science fair. Titles of the exhibits ranged from "An Attempt To Produce Transformation in Artificially Induced Non-Luminous Mutant Cultures of Photobacterium Fischeri by Treatment With D.N.A. Extracts Taken From Normal Cultures" to "The Study of the Respiration of a Potato."

PROJECTIONIST CLUB REMAINS A VALUABLE AID TO PATRICK HENRY

The Projectionists' Club is invaluable to the teaching staff. Its members are always available to show educational films to supplement courses.

Under the sponsorship of Mr. Charles McKinney, the members also learn valuable facts about audio-visual aids and their operation. The club keeps an up-to-date list of all new films posted in the office and projectionists' room.

Camera Club members work behind the scenes to photograph needed pictures for the school newspaper and annual.

Whether it is the absence of it in the darkroom, the availability of it in setting the lens opening, or the general air and personality of this club, "Light" is the key word.

Their work has graced the pages of the P.H. "Spark," local newspapers, and most importantly, this volume. Members have enjoyed working closely with Mr. Nelson Taylor, club sponsor, Principal of Patrick Henry High, and camera "bug" first class.

STUDENTS TEST CHESS STRATEGY

"Checkmate!"

"Oh! Well, try again!"

These statements and sounds could come only from a Chess Club meeting. Monthly, members gather to try their latest strategy on the traditional fields of battle.

Mr. Dave Smith, the club sponsor, supervises "tactics" and teaches new members the game of war.

Mrs. Katherine Hoyle, F.T.A. consultant of the V.E.A., addresses the club.

Through monthly meetings and an exciting trip to Mary Washington College, members of the Future Teachers of America learned about teaching and the future that one might find there.

The club's very existence is to encourage members to teach and to appreciate the role and responsibility of a teacher in school.

The annual assembly program illustrated the club's goals and purpose for all of Patrick Henry.

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS OF AMERICA

The Patrick Henry Chapter, Future Homemakers of America, chose "Action for Citizenship" as its main project for the year. Under this project, the chapter carried out numerous activities. A few of these were the adoption of an elderly lady in a local convalescent home and contributions to the county Christmas Mother and the American Field Service Program.

For their annual Assembly Program, the Chapter presented a program with Rev. Lawson, Randolph Macon College Chaplain, speaking on the "Importance of Citizenship in Home and Community." Many of the members enjoyed selling knives and serving dinners as chapter money-making projects.

WORK FOR BETTER CITIZENSHIP

Under the sponsorship of the home economics teachers -- Mrs. Ruth Durham, Mrs. Carol Stevenson, and Mrs. Ivy Cross -- the Chapter again this year boasts many honors. Evelyn Coates, a Senior, served as Federation President for the year, and Jane Starke, a Junior, succeeded Joan Longest as State F.H.A. Treasurer.

F.H.A. members win 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place ribbons for their baked goods in the State Fair.

OF THE STATE'S LARGEST CHAPTERS

The Patrick Henry Chapter has carried out programs that increased the value of crops and livestock in the community. Good feeding, good breeding and care, and the use of better seeds and fertilizer make for a better rounded program of farming in the community.

The chapter has held competitive programs this year with other area chapters in forestry, crops, shop, tractor driving, public speaking, soil and livestock judging.

Eight boys were candidates for the State Farmer Degree. This is the highest award in the state. Those candidates were Walter Bremner, James Beazley, Edward Corker, Dale Vaughan, Dennis Beard, Eugene Hall, Keith Bradford, and Churchill Noland. These degrees will be awarded at the 1963 State F.F.A. Convention in June at V.P.I.

4H BOYS PROMOTE IMPROVED AGRICULTURE IN THE COMMUNITY

The Senior 4-H Boys' Division sponsored by C. W. Sanders, works to promote leadership and agriculture in our community. This is done through a club project, which is put on display. This year the project was on career education and was put on display at the Reynolds Metal Company. The boys went on to the district meeting and plan to travel to the district meet this summer.

The Future Business Leaders of America is an organization for those students enrolled in commercial courses. The members are available to aid faculty members and fellow students with typing and other secretarial services. Under Miss Arstelle Presley's sponsorship, the members learn valuable facts about business careers. Under the patronage of the club, the students investigate varied business roles.

This year Peggy Tignor and Laura Lane received perfect scores in a State-wide F.B.L.A. Spelling Contest.

CLUB

The Dramatics Club exists for the development of interest and talent. This is accomplished by presenting plays for the school and the Drama Festival. This year "When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet" received a "Good" rating. Club members operate every phase of production including prompting, lighting, and make-up, as well as acting.

The only requirement for entry is a genuine interest in the stage. This requirement insures people willing to undergo the rigorous work necessary.

The Chorus began its activities this year by performing for the Thanksgiving Assembly. Then came the long, hard days of work and planning for the Christmas Assembly devoted to the music department. Plans were upset by the weather and the assembly was canceled due to snow.

The 1963 season got underway with concentrated practice for the Spring Music Festival. The work paid off when this group received a II rating, higher than any P.H. Chorus had received before.

"HMS Pinafore," Gilbert and Sullivan's opperetta, was offered in the spring and the year's end activities were brightened by the Chorus' appearance at graduation exercises.

RATING THAN BEFORE AT FESTIVAL

The planning and talent expended upon the stage for "HMS Pinafore" show clearly in the picture to the right. Three performances of the musical made good use of this preliminary effort.

BELOW: "Oh, boy, would you look at their majorettes!"

Spring brought the Apple Blossom Festival and the annual Spring Concert.

Members are assured by participation in the band, a life-time appreciation of music, and lessons which are learned from close association with each other and with a very able and devoted leader.

PATRICK HENRY MAJORETTES

During the half-times of football games, despite the weather and regardless if the Patriots were winning or losing, the majorettes would strut out, twirling their batons in time to the band's rousing music, to boost the spirit of the fans. Suddenly a streak of flame would burst into the circle of majorettes. In reality, however, it was Joan Longest, head majorette, twirling her fire-baton to the amazement and awe of the crowd.

The majorettes attained state-wide recognition for Patrick Henry by accompanying the band to the Winchester Annual Apple Blossom Parade. With a sparkling performance they capped their successful year in "63."

This year marked several firsts in the program of the Student Cooperative Association.

At the beginning of the year it was decided that assistant homeroom representatives would be needed in order for the new projects to be carried out.

Fall was brightened by the arrival of Kia, whose visit was one of the S.C.A. projects. This was followed by a year of planning on future and former projects including landscaping the school, school honor system, and daily devotionals by individual students. The S.C.A. also gave a non-profit Christmas Dance for the entire school and managed all school assemblies.

All in all the year was a good one for the school and through the diligent work of the S.C.A., many projects were completed and plans for the future were made.

Anna Belle Corbin, Kia Nylander, Petra Nurminen, Wylyn Letson, Florence Bishop, Grace Zanardi and Gretchen Moore participate in an AFS sponsored panel discussion before the student body.

Newly organized this fall, the Patrick Henry Chapter of the National Beta Club tapped 32 members, all Seniors and Juniors. These students were selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and character, with great emphasis on the latter.

The club is an active service club which undertakes various jobs around the school, such as cafeteria clean-up.

Three delegates, Harriet Priddy, Betty Cross, and Jane Starke, and the Club sponsor, Mrs. Pugh, attended the State Beta Club Convention, which was held this spring at the John Marshall Hotel in Richmond, Virginia.

Quill and Scroll is an organization formed to recognize exceptional talent in journalism. The Patrick Henry Chapter is named for Paul F. Watkins, who was a pioneer of journalism in Hanover County and was for years editor of the Herald Progress, the county newspaper.

All members are juniors and seniors and must participate actively on either the "Voice" or the "Spark" staff.

HONORIS CAUSA

"For the Sake of Honor"

BELOW: Anna Belle Corbin and Walter Hoye talk together between classes.

Honoris Causa encourages learning for its own sake. Those who have been received into the order have intellectual curiosity. Mental and moral discipline builds character which is the basis of leadership. Members of Honoris Causa are leaders whether or not they hold school offices. The satisfaction that comes from a job well done, the horizons that are broadened through study, the rewards that follow new interests make worthwhile the struggle for scholarship of the highest quality. Seniors who have been recognized by Honoris Causa know that the harder the struggle, the greater the achievement.

"SPARK WINS HONOR

The words, "Deadline next Monday!" are usually the signal for the eleven members of "The Spark's" literary staff to spill out onto the sidewalks of Patrick Henry, hot on the trail of fresh news stories.

One never knows where a "Spark" reporter may "strike" next in the search for a story. Once a newsworthy victim is found, he is plied with questions as the reporter jots down a bewildering jumble of notes. A faculty member hidden away in the darkest lairs of a teachers' lounge is in just as much danger of this verbal assault as a student standing on "senior row."

When the last tidbits of news are gathered and stories are ready to be written, the most awesome spectacle of all takes place. Eleven "Spark" reporters charge for one typewriter in the 10' x 6' staff room

In the midst of all this frantic activity, Margaret Knight, editor, and Mr. Frank Reynolds, sponsor, have somehow managed to proof articles, write headlines, and prepare the layout for upcoming issues.

A student on the "Spark" business staff is of a hardy breed. His specialty is to cleverly persuade local merchants to advertise in the pages of "The Spark," but this is scarcely the full extent of his talents.

He must subsidize the paper's hungry bank account by selling light bulbs, perfume, paperback books, and, of course, the issues of "The Spark." For the past year, Mar-

PATRICK HENRY ANNUAL STAFF

"All copy must be in today!" This is a familiar sound, as the members of the Annual Staff rush about meeting last-minute deadlines. Amid the helter-skelter, a yearbook recording daily life at Patrick Henry is somehow produced.

At the beginning of the year under the sponsorship of Mr. Scruggs, Cabell Luck, Business Manager, briefed his colleagues on the correct way to solicit ads. At the same time Pettus Frazier, Editor-in-Chief, and Mr. Duff, Literary Sponsor, worked with the Literary Staff, teaching them procedures of layout.

The members did not give without gaining for by the end of the year they had gained valuable knowledge about organization and editorial work. Besides these things, several members were sent to S.I.P.A. convention where they received additional advice concerning the production of a good yearbook. These were Harriet Priddy, Joe Antonelli, John Winston, and Jerry Grubbs.

The final result of all the members' labor is the preservation of the year's events at Patrick Henry.

PATRICK HENRY 0 VARINA 13

Patrick Henry faced a heavier, larger team but met them with an unexpected desire and determination. Although playing one of the hardest fought games of the season, the Blue Devils edged P.H. 13 to 0. The P.H. defense paced by Donnie Tate and Charles Walton held Varina to an unexpected score. Halfback Ronald Grubbs gave full effort, but found the Varina defense too strong.

PATRICK HENRY 14 GARFIELD 27

Patrick Henry went up against a Group 1-B school at home which proved to be too much. Ronald Grubbs scored on a 100 yard run tying the game at 14 to 14. Garfield then scored two quick touchdowns on passes, which could not be counteracted by long ground gains.

PATRICK HENRY 34 SPOTSYLVANIA 0

It was a cold night, and the field was hard as bricks, but the spirits of the team remained high for they scored in every quarter. However the big moment was when Ron Tyson scored on a 50 yard run.

PATRICK HENRY 35 POWHATAN 0

The Patriots found weakness in both the Indians' offensive and defensive early in the game. Showing great spirit and readiness, they marched on to upset the Indians homecoming by defeating them 35 to 0.

PATRICK HENRY 0 COLONIAL HEIGHTS 30

Colonial Heights, district II champion and Group I A member next year, proved to be too fast and too strong for the Patriots. Dispite all-out performances of fullback Ralph Johnson and quarterback Russ Palmore the Colonials proceeded to shut P.H. out 30 to 0. The Patrick Henry defense solidly dug in toward the end of the game but the victory enabled Colonial Heights to become District Champions.

PATRIOTS 195 — OPPONENT 70

The Patriot football squad sparked by such exceptional players as Ralph Johnson, Ronald Grubbs, Carlton Eddleton and many others, moved on in the 1962 campaign to finish with a winning season of 7 wins and 3 loses. With an outstanding defensive line the Patriots were able to hold their opponents to a very small number of rushing yards while their spirited offense rocked up countless touchdowns. The Patriots held their opposing teams scoreless in seven of the games played allowing 70 points to be scored against them in the season. Losing only four players from the starting line-up the returning Patriots have hopes for an even better season for 1963.

Led by fullback Billy Webber, the junior Patriots compiled a 2-2 district record, with a 2-5 over-all slate. Lacking size the J.V.'s relied mostly on quick opening plays and a passing attack geared by the receiving of co-captain ends Jeff Spencer and Calvin Stanley.

Highlighting the season were the 6-0 win over Colonial Heights, and an 8-7 loss to Lee-Davis, where the Patriots just ran out of time.

VARSITY CHEERLEADERS

Good sportsmanship, enthusiastic school spirit, hard work, and fair play are all terms which can easily be associated with the Patrick Henry High School Varsity Cheerleaders.

Each spring many girls vie for a place in the cheerleading line-up. New cheerleaders are selected by a panel composed of several faculty members and students, who base their choices on the specified qualifications.

The chosen squad spent long hours in the summer practicing familiar cheers and improvising new ones.

BOOST SCHOOL SPIRIT

When football season opened, the cheerleaders were prepared to boost the team.

Their school enthusiasm was evident by their participation in numerous pep rallies, parades, the annual Thalhimers Cheer Rally, the Tobacco Festival Parade, and the March of Dimes Campaign.

These girls spent a busy but fun-filled year. Because of their accomplishments and their boundless energy, the varsity cheerleaders have played a vital role in making the 1962-1963 school year a memorable one.

Patriots Go To Tournament

Patrick Henry vs. Madison

The Patriots moved to a semi-final berth in the tournament by defeating Madison 60-38. Ralph Johnson contributed 27 points and Ronald Grubbs had 14, to win the first for Patrick Henry.

Patrick Henry vs. Colonial Heights

The strongest district team, Colonial Heights, handed Patrick Henry their first tournament loss, winning 78-37. The loss put the Patriots in position for a play-off game with Lee-Davis. Johnson was again high scorer for P.H. with 13 points. Fred Daniels of the Colonials was the game's high scorer with 20 points.

Patrick Henry vs. Lee-Davis

Lee-Davis, county rivals of the Patriots, gave all they had in the consolation game of the District 2, Group 2 tournament. However, this was not enough to stop the Patriots from winning, on a great 21 point performance by Ralph Johnson, by a score of 46-38. The victory gave Patrick Henry third place in the tourney.

Compiling a 7-9 record the Patriots played mediocre ball the first part of the season, but picked up and became a precisioned outfit after the first few games.

Led by Johnny Mallory and Jeff Spencer, Patrick Henry shifted into high gear and won several come-from-behind decisions over their opponents.

Climaxing the season at home against Lee-Davis, the Patriots made a desperate comeback bid in the fourth quarter, and went on to win 35-33.

BASKETBALL IS MAJOR GIRLS' SPORT

Basketball is the major girls' sport offered at Patrick Henry. Each member of the team put in long hours of practice preparing for basketball games with area schools.

Although the girls had a good season, winning the game was not their only goal. All of the girls played each game in a sportsmanlike manner which made their school proud of them.

The Patriettes were led by their co-captains, senior guard, Marguarite Gilman and senior forward, Elizabeth Troxell.

Being a member of the basketball team proved to be a rewarding experience for each girl as did coaching for Mrs. Cooper and Miss Nuckolls.

P.H. CAPTURES DISTRICT TRACK CROWN

Crippled by the loss of Dave Anderson, star sprinter who graduated, the Patriots had quite a few "rookie" stars as they swept up the district with ease. Reinforced by the return of ace sprinter, Ron Grubbs, who shattered two school records and a district record (100 yd. dash . . . 9.9) and big Don Tate, state discus champion the Patriots won the district easily, capturing nine first place titles. Undefeated in the regular season the Patriots went to the state meet with high hopes of winning, but suffered disappointment when few Patriot entrants came up to usual standards.

PATRIOTS COMPILE 11-2 RECORD

Opening the season at home against Tucker the Patriots gave a hint of the season to come. With Keith Bradford showing the way, the Patriots crushed the Tigers 5-1 for Carlton Eddleton who struck out 12 men enroute to a five hitter.

Continuing their winning ways, the Patriots compiled an 11-2 record as they went on to become co-champions of District 2 for the second straight year.

The Patriots were led by such standouts as Russ Palmore (.372) Keith Bradford (.359) and Johnny Mallory (.363) while Carlton Eddleton led the pitching, averaging 9 strikeouts a game.

Ronnie Grubbs supplied superb clutch hitting to power the Patriots to several come-from-behind victories and also tied for the RBI lead along with Frank Matro, Kenny Hart, and Bucky Hale. Eddleton was tops in the extra base hit department with 3 doubles, 2 triples, and one four bagger.

Handicapped by inexperience, the junior Patriots won only one out of their first 5 games, but came roaring back, winning their last three. Twice they trounced teams to which they had lost earlier in the season.

With a little experience under their belts the Patriots turned into a formidable outfit, led by such standouts as Johnny Hart, who consistently came through with the big hit. The pitching was led by Billy Priddy and Sammy Mitchell, with Charles Eddleton showing great potential as a short-term reliefer. Sammy Mitchell also led the team in extra-base hits and teamed up with his brother, Jimmy to form an unbeatable battery.

JV CHEERLEADERS BOOST WINNING TEAMS

The J.V. Cheerleaders appeared in red skirts and white sweaters during football season. Their new outfits, consisting of red vests and skirts with white blouses, added color to the basketball season.

In addition to cheering for all J.V. sports, they aided the Varsity Cheerleaders by participating in pep rallies and Homecoming Festivities.

FACULTY NOMINATES FIFTY

ANNA BELLE CORBIN

The ability to lead is a rare and enviable trait; however, to a "born leader" such as our S.C.A. president Anna Belle Corbin, the more the opportunities to lead, the more fun is afforded. Anna Belle's honors which range from election to class offices to election to Governor of Girls' State in 1962, apparently offered her constant enjoyment.

Through all the fame that resulted from her accomplishments, Anna Belle remained essentially the person she always had been -- quiet, efficient, sincere, and devoted to completing any task which presented itself.

ADDISON JONES

Poise and a sincere belief in the worth of humanity give Addison Jones an advantage over his fellow students which marks him as a leader. Chosen to guide the Patrick Henry student body during the year 1963-1964, Addison brings to office a background that ranges from ability in athletics to a position on the annual staff.

STUDENTS CHOOSE TEN

WALTER HOYE

One of the more mature members of the Patrick Henry student body is Walter Hoye. Possessing an ability to accept responsibility and to co-operate with other members of the team, Walter has carved a well deserved name for himself.

Diverse in interests, he has participated effectively in a variety of activities from sports to representing the school at Boys' State in 1962.

PETTUS FRAZIER

Almost as if she had been saving a phrase for just the proper moment, Pettus' appropriate words when needed smoothed rough spots out of every phase of her varied life. She was active in class leadership, editor of the 1963 VOICE, cheerleader, charity princess, and quiet friend of the masses. Pettus Frazier has established a pattern of character traits that is enviable from any viewpoint and destined to bring honor and pride to herself and her school.

AS TOP PEOPLE

CAROLYN KEYES

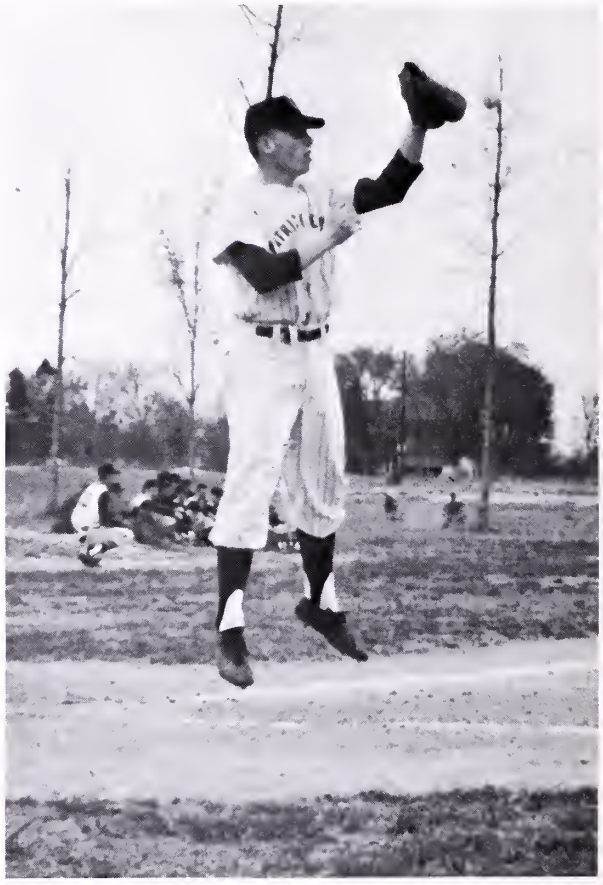
Beauty never deflected Carolyn Keyes in her charted high school career. For more important than her personality and beauty are her intellectual and leadership abilities.

Her activities as a cheerleader, member of F.T.A., National Honor Society, and Beta Club served daily as reminders to her classmates that hard work and devotion to purpose are the answers to a successful high school life.

GRAYSON JOHNSON

Popular Grayson Johnson's interest in people has reflected favorably in his accomplishments at Patrick Henry. As have so many of the top ten, Grayson has proven himself not only in one facet of school life but in many.

As a member of S.C.A., Beta, and the Key Club, Grayson has established the reputation of ". . . getting the job done regardless of personal sacrifice."



— IN 1963

RUSS PALMORE

Diverse in interest, quick in mind, and talented as an athlete, Russ Palmore moves through Patrick Henry's campus as an example to all. Trust signifies much of what is generally felt by those who know him -- trust that he will do what he can as best he can in the most honest way he can.

His record indicates that this trust is not false or unwarranted. Repeatedly chosen to represent and lead his fellow students, Russ Palmore continues to achieve; in so doing he sets an admirable goal for his fellow students.

LARRY GILMAN

His ambition and talent have earned him the honor of captain of the 1963 basketball team and the president's chair in the Key Club.

Larry has proven himself a capable follower and leader in his years at Patrick Henry.

— AT PATRICK HENRY

LYN LETSON

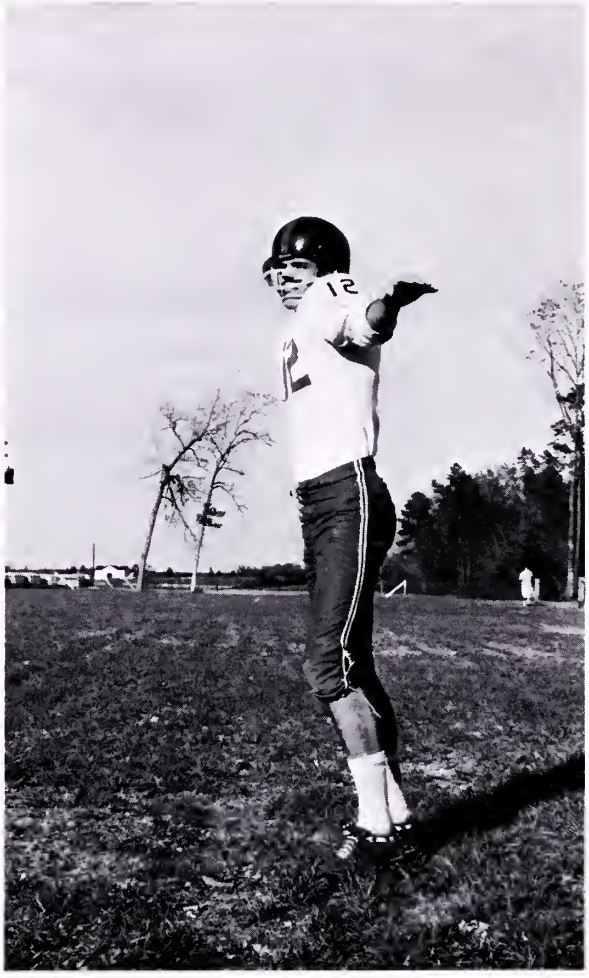
School spirit, an abstract term at best that generally denotes a "Rah-Rah" sort of feeling, takes on a new and concrete meaning when applied to Lyn Letson. Admired by contemporaries and faculty alike, Lyn has contributed quietly and generously of herself -- giving unselfishly to school and community.

As a charity princess, school leader, and student, she has created a place for herself in Patrick Henry's history. A quick flashing smile and a slight nod of the head were guarantees of a job well done to anyone who called upon Lyn's time and talent.

RONALD GRUBBS

Few of us ever break a record or know the heady feeling that must result from being the "best" at something. Tie this in with personality and a good mind, and it would be most natural to create a "big head" who was interested in his own glory and forgot the "Team."

Perhaps Ronnie Grubbs' greatest accomplishment is that even though he did set records, was obviously the "best" at many things, and showed intelligence in class, he remained principally interested in his fellow players and the team. In doing so, he has brought much credit to himself, his teammates, and Patrick Henry.



SWEDEN'S AMBASSADOR TO PATRICK HENRY

Knowing people is one big factor in getting along in the world. The more varied the knowledge, the greater the chances of being a success. The American Field Service's program of bringing and sending students from one country to another is a positive effort to educate us in the ways, customs, and peoples of the world.

The daily routine of Patrick Henry was sparked and brightened by our first such student, Kia Nylander from Sweden.

Classroom efforts that were routine to us were a challenge to Kia because of her shyness and unfamiliarity with American, English, and Virginian customs. She was never "dead wood." Her presence in class sparked comment and discussion that would have not taken place without her. She provided a new outlook for us.

Socially, we must have seemed forward, even awkward at times, -- but soon our customs became her own and our new Americanized ambassador took to task her role as representative from Sweden. She made us aware of herself and the qualities that her country had instilled in her. To sum it all up, Kia Nylander made Sweden more than a spot on the map with "X" number of exports and "X" number of imports. She made it a living room of wonderful people.

P.H. INSTALLS LANGUAGE LAB

The installation of Patrick Henry's language laboratory this year was an event that would rate little space under normal circumstances. Several factors behind the scenes make this equipment valuable beyond its face value. The fourteen unit lab, soon to be twenty-four, was designed and constructed largely through the efforts of Charles McKinney, physics instructor, Frank Reynolds, French instructor, and Frank Flippo, an eighth grade student with exceptional ability in electronics.

Cost of the lab was held to a fraction of market cost through complete "home construction" using surplus electronic equipment, student, and staff labor.

This lab, representing the most up-to-date method of teaching modern foreign languages, is a system of tape recorders which allows a student to hear exactly how the language SHOULD sound and then affords him an opportunity to hear his own efforts and to make a comparison. Top picture: Mr. McKinney, Frank Flippo, and a workman testing the lab. Below: Mr. Reynolds attempts to disregard the workmen and conduct class.

THE ASHLAND RESCUE SQUAD

Having the community firmly behind a school means the difference between success and failure. The entire western part of Hanover County has been behind Patrick Henry and our success in every field of school activity supports this statement.

One seemingly small support offered was was the faithful Ashland Rescue Squad which followed our football team to every game. This was done voluntarily with few thanks and no financial support directly from the school. At least part of the football team's success can be attributed to the knowledge that there was expert help waiting should an accident occur. This assurance must have been invaluable as a morale factor, too, during our winning season.

We of Patrick Henry want to recognize as a body that we knew the Rescue Squad was there; furthermore for everything they did for us, from treating fainting cheerleaders to attending our injured players, we are unanimously grateful.

Since Stunt Night is an S. C. A. project all members of Patrick Henry's student body are expected to participate in the preparation as well as the program.

STUNT NIGHT IS A

"Do you REALLY think my helment is becoming?" The Senior Class attempted to launch America's first woman astronaut in "Female 7."

TRADITION AT P.H.H.S.

ENDLESS EFFORTS PRODUCE

AN UNFORGETTABLE MARDI GRAS

Thoroughly infected with the fast approaching end of school, the Juniors began the long happy task of planning and producing the biggest of all Patrick Henry dances, the Junior-Senior Prom.

The early meetings assured them that work was the only way to success and that they had enough talent to guarantee as good a prom as had been seen here, if not the best ever. Centering their efforts around the theme Mardi-Gras, they called on their "artists" and "designers" to come up with ideas that would transform the gym into an appropriately magic setting. The New Orleans flavor was effective, but required work, work, and more work. At times they wondered if it were all worth it!

This question was answered gradually as things began to take shape; by the night of the actual dance when the final details were cleared, they realized just what a fine job they had done.

KING REX AND HIS QUEEN

HIGHLIGHT THE EVENING'S FESTIVITIES

The magic of dancing with a beautiful girl to Kenny Henderson's music made the Juniors' efforts seem small and certainly no one could forget the pleased looks and wonderful comments made by the seniors and faculty when they viewed the Juniors' accomplishments.

Flashing smiles, long formal dresses, and white dinner jackets added to the mesmeric effect of the formal dance figure.

The evening drew to a close, and as the sun rose over private parties, nothing, not even cleaning up, could dim the joy of the night before.

THE CLASS SERMON CAME A MULTITUDE OF EVENTS

Apprehension marked the faces as the class of 1963 prepared to enter the final formal assembly. They were proud that they were the first four year class to be graduated from Patrick Henry.

Whispered questions, " . . . is my cap straight? Does my slip show? Did Mr. Taylor say we HAD to come Friday?", convey some of the excitement prior to assembly.

The rush of making deadlines and schedules plagued every member of the Class of 1963. Here they prepare for the assembly in which Dr. J. Earl Moreland, President of Randolph Macon College for Men, offered all sound advice.

Pictured to the right is Dr. J. Earl Moreland, President of Randolph Macon College for Men, who was the speaker at the final Senior Assembly. Dr. Moreland spoke to the class about the twin purposes of life -- creation and service. He noted the limitless opportunities that await anyone who will make an honest effort. His words carried a special meaning to the graduating Seniors.

The Senior class received a standing ovation as the Junior Marshals Joe Antonelli, Sandy Smith, Kathy Ferrell, Russ Palmore, and Ray Berry led the way out.

Members of the Class of 1963 pose on the U.S. Capitol steps with Mr. James Acosta and Mrs. Linda Luck, class sponsors, and Senators Harry F. Byrd and Hugh Towers.

The senior trip to Washington, D. C. in May of this year was highlighted by meeting the famous Senator Harry F. Byrd who welcomed the class to the capital and talked with many members of the class. The class was accompanied by their sponsors and Mr. R. W. Durham, P.H. assistant principal. Pictured on the right is Senator Byrd talking with Mrs. Luck and Mr. Acosta.

VIRGINIA SENATOR WELCOMED SENIORS

The pleasure of dinner together was greatly enhanced by being allowed more than twenty-five minutes in which to eat. Activities such as this dinner together aided the Class of 1963 in becoming more a team than they had been previously.

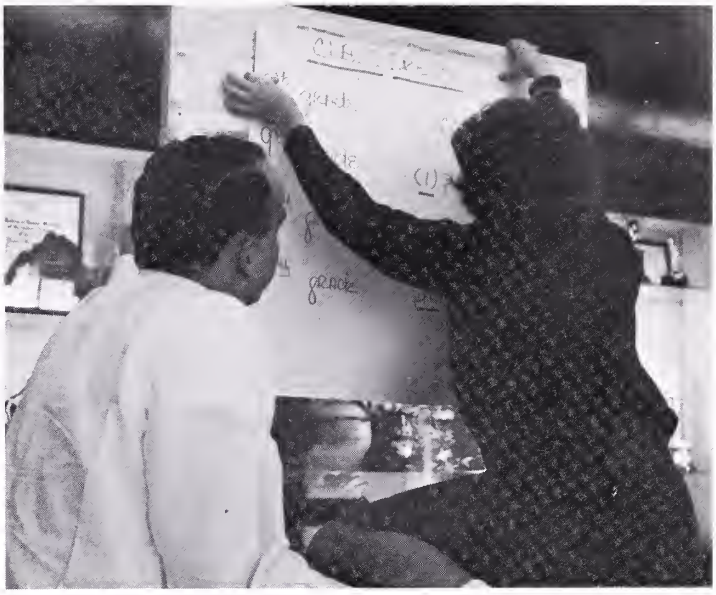
S.C.A. letters are given for outstanding and well-rounded participation in extracurricular activities. Recipients of these letters in 1963 were Elizabeth Troxell, Margaret Knight, Pettus Frazier, Lyn Letson, Fred Palmore, Walter Hoye, Pat Carneal, Virginia Vaughn, Joan Longest, Sherry Swain, Charlotte Waldrop, Carolyn Rogers, Russ Palmore, Eleanor Parr, John McClurkin, and Brenda Gibson.

Varsity baksetball players who will not return next year were given their name plates or letters or both. They are Kenny Hart, Frank Matro, Walter Hoye, Randy Pleasants, Dave Ellington, John McClurkin, Ron Grubbs, and Larry Gilman.

Letters for the Group II Champions of baseball and track were awarded to a multitude. The recipients were B. Murphy, J. Cobb, J. Schmierer, P. Stansbury, G. McLeod, D. Hall, R. Chisholm, T. Hall, R. Berry, C. Bowles, H. Whitlock, R. Grubbs, C. Walton, R. Johnson, D. Tate, B. Hale, B. Pleasants, and A. Jones.

THE ASPECTS OF LEARNING ARE VARIED



Learning at Patrick Henry is varied and includes gaining knowledge from professional visitors such as Mrs. Sue Krost, a former Miss Virginia, who visited the school to help home-ec girls with their personal appearance. At times, just being responsible for advertising and organizing coming events provided opportunities to grow. Practical learning through experiments is another facet of the education received. Seeing it happen is much more convincing than being told ". . . it would happen -- if."

TEACHERS ARE AN IMPORTANT ASPECT HERE

INDIVIDUAL LEARNING IS A KEY FACTOR

BELOW Walter Hoye signs library passes for Betty Mallory, Harriet Priddy, and Edward Leslie in a student-run "honor study hall" held this year for the first time at Patrick Henry. There were no teachers in this study hall all year and students were their own "bosses."
